- a shared understanding of and practice using deep listening skills,
- a shared understanding of core diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) concepts,
- a shared understanding of and practice using a systems iceberg to unpack how DEI dynamics play out in our work,
- a shared understanding of and practice of a decision-making model that maximizes stakeholder engagement, and

Cross Cultural Care Workshop: Doctors, Dreamers and Muslims - Working Toward the Highest Possible Quality Healthcare in the Current Sociopolitical Climate

Overview: Most practicing health professionals have the opportunity at some level to care for individuals and communities who receive de jure or de facto differential societal treatment, are subject to stigma and bias, and/or merit special consideration in their health needs assessment for cultural, political or other reasons. This workshop will serve to examine and give tools for addressing this universal phenomenon through the lenses of two groups of patients currently in the national spotlight, while enhancing the attendees' ability to provide improved care with members of these specific groups.
